Food Plant Promises Clean-up

The Best Foods plant at 18th and Bryant Streets, a source of noxious odors to Potrero Hill residents since 1940, has pledged to spend upwards of $175,000 by June in an effort to correct the problem.

In return for the company's promise of extensive plant modifications, the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District will hold off prosecution of a public nuisance complaint it filed against the firm last July. The complaint, which followed numerous protests from area dwellers, charged that the odor nuisance was a result of the "soapy, burnt or rancid oil" that forms the waste product of the plant's vegetable oil refining operations.

Best Foods, a division of CPC International, Inc., uses its Bryant Street facility to process such well-known products as Nucoa and Mazola Margarines, Mazola Corn Oil and Best Foods Mayonnaise for West Coast distribution. The smelly by-product vapors, picked up by the prevailing ocean breeze, waft over the Bayshore Freeway and onto the western side of the Hill, often necessitating the closing of windows or the untimely cessation of sunning activities.

To stop the pollution, the company told the pollution agency last November that it would undertake a two-step program to modify its facilities and operations:

1) "The waste material formerly processed (here) will be transported from the facilities and processed elsewhere. We will also modify the present... system by sealing the tanks... so that if for some reason the waste material cannot be transported we can process the material without emitting odors which constitute a nuisance." According to plant manager G. E. Johnson, the waste material has been shipped to various parts of California for use in producing feed since mid-December.

2) "The present cooling system... will be modified by means of the installation of a 'closed loop system' which will use heat exchangers. This modification will cost in excess of $175,000... We believe (it) will be completed by June 8, 1976."

The new system will be the first of its kind, says Johnson, and will be monitored by the industry for possible use in other locations. The new procedures will mean that no oily material will be circulated through the plant's cooling tower and into the atmosphere. The equipment is presently on order.

"It's a new world, and we've got to live with it," commented Johnson, adding that the technology for the new cooling system is barely a year old. He is optimistic that the changes will cure the problem. In any case, he promises that the company will take any additional corrective steps that are necessary, explaining that the excellent business locations of the plant makes it worthwhile for the company to revamp the old factory rather than move elsewhere. The plant employs 300 manufacturing and clerical workers.

The Caleb Clark Health Center officially opened to serve the Potrero Hill community last Saturday, January 17. The Center was honored by the presence of San Francisco's newly elected Mayor, George Moscone, who participated in the ribbon cutting ceremony at the open house festivities. Mayor Moscone congratulated those persons who made the Health Center a reality to the Community which it serves. "The work which you have already done for your community and the celebration of the opening of the Caleb G. Clark Health Center are reasons to be optimistic about the future. Working together, concerned citizens, such as yourselves, and government can have an impact on improving the quality of life for all," Moscone stated.

Vera Blue, Chairperson of the Advisory Council, stated with pride, 'The Health Center will render major outpatient care services with dignity and willingness; be it large or small. Completion of the Center exemplifies internal respect of each community member and demonstrates a united effort toward accomplishments in the spirit of vast cooperation and unquestionable unity."

The Health Center is a remembrance of Caleb "Jerry" Clark who gave so much of himself, before his recent death, to make the Center a reality. Dr. Francis Curry, Department of Public Health said, "Some people gave so much of their time, energies and hearts, that to mention some would be to needless slight others. However, one individual stands far above everyone else - a giant of determination, dedication and leadership - so that it is fitting and proper for us to dedicate this neighborhood Health Center as a memorial to Caleb G Clark, who literally gave his life to see this dream come true."

The Center is expected to serve an estimated 10,000 residents of the Potrero Hill area with general medical and dental care.

For appointments and information call 648-3022. The Center is located at 1050 Wisconsin St.

PURGE CONTINUES AT THE GUARDIAN

Following the Bay Guardian employees' strong pro-union vote in the National Labor Relations Board elections held at the paper last Dec. 26, Guardian management on Wednesday, Jan. 7, cut some 100 weekly hours from its already decimated payroll in a move effecting the earn-of about a dozen workers in the art, production, subscription and distribution departments. Two part-time typesetters were laid off, and a few days later the one supervisor who had been outspokenly in favor of the union was fired.

Although volunteering that he would rather avoid the publicity, Johnson expressed understanding for the concerns of Hill residents: "Potrero Hill is one of San Francisco's nicest neighborhoods." Noses on Potrero Hill will be anxiously waiting to learn whether Best Foods can make it a little nicer.

SEE PAGE TWO FOR MORE INFORMATION ON POLLUTION CONTROL COMPLAINTS

Management asserts the hours were cut as a necessary economy and the supervisor was fired because of his refusal to follow orders, but Guardian employees contend the cuts and the firing were retaliatory: those whose hours were reduced are all pro-union workers and aside from the one fired, no supervisor has been asked to resign or accept a wage reduction. The fired supervisor points out that his wages first were cut by nearly half in an obvious attempt to provoke his resignation, and, when this failed, he then had imposed upon him arbitrary and capricious orders designed to so constrict his job that he would have no choice but to leave it voluntarily. When this too failed in its purpose he was fired.

Thus Guardian management's purge of employee ranks continues in an apparent attempt to rid the newspaper of its more radical union activists before entering into contract negotiations with the newly organized employees, probably sometime in February.

Not coincidentally, employees noted, as Guardian management gears up for the impending contract negotiations the paper is inaugurating its new Compu-graphic typesetting machine, a huge and expensive device half again the size of a kitchen range. This machine is capable of justifying type (giving smooth right margins in a column of print) and began full-time use with the January 23 issue. One employee described it as 'the machine that put two typesetters out of work.' Those two were among the missing after this latest example of Guardian budget-cutting.

Emphasis on MinoritiesOpportunity for Budding Journalists

With the support of private foundations and participating newspapers a Summer Program for Minority Journalists is being offered at U.C. Berkeley for women and men who desire newspaper careers but have little or no professional journalism experience.

Applicants must be US citizens, preferably between the ages of 20 and 35. College education or degree not required.

Students will receive tuition and room and board on the Berkeley campus, as well as a small weekly stipend during the program. Transportation will be provided for out-of-town students, but no housing for dependents provided.

The program schedule is June 20 to September 3, 1976. Persons planning to return to college next fall are not eligible. At the completion of the course, graduates will begin full-time jobs with sponsoring newspapers and must be willing to relocate.

Requirements: 1) demonstration of reporting and writing ability or potential; 2) commitment to a journalism career; 3) demonstration of a minimum typing speed of 35 words per minute.

For application forms and further information contact: Summer Program for Minority Journalists, School of Journalism, Evans Hall, University of California, Berkeley, CA 94720. Deadline 3-13-76.

Law PassedINJURED WORKERS RIGHTS

Assemblyman John F. Foran, Chairman Ways and Means Committee, announced the signing into law of his Assembly Bill 1287.

Under present law, the employer or insurance carrier has the absolute right to control the injured employees' medical program. The employee has no choice but to accept treatment from the designated doctor or forfeit benefits.

Assembly Bill 1287, in addition, will require an employer to provide chiropractic treatment, and will provide that the employee may be treated by a physician of his own choice or at a facility of his own choice within a reasonable geographical area after 30 days from the date the injury is reported.

"The signing of this bill represents approximately 10 years of effort in attempting to allow a worker who is injured on the job the right to select his own physician," Foran said.

AB-1287 became effective January 1, 1976.

Pollution Control Information

For more information on pollution complaints call the following:

on Bay Area air pollution control: Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, 939 Ellis St., S.F. 94109, (415) 771-6000

on automotive air pollution and the State's air pollution program: Air Resources Board, 1709 11th St., Sacramento 95814, (800) 242-4450, or (800) 952-5210 (Toll Free) on water pollution control: Regional Water Quality Control Board, 1111 Jackson St., Rm. 6040, Oakland 94612, (415) 464-1255 on Federal environmental programs: Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), 100 California St., S.F. 94102, (415) 556-3232.

A word of advice from the Information Office of the Bay Area Pollution Control District: When you detect foul odors, do not wait or hesitate, call the Pollution Control office and report, regardless of time, day or night. The BAPCD office suggests that good descriptions will hasten their action, so give location; wind direction; odor type (acrid/food/animal/sewage/etc.). In order to report back to complainant, the agency requests that persons calling leave their name and phone number.

St. Teresa's Activities Set

St. Teresa's Annual Rummage Sale will be held February 7 and 8 (Saturday 9:30 - 4:30; Sunday 10:30 - 3:00), at the Church Hall at 19th and Connecticut Streets. Articles on sale include furniture, small appliances, clothing and much more. All are welcome to browse and buy.

Later on in the month, on February 19 and 26, a workshop on marriage renewal will be conducted for couples.

Parish activities last month included a celebration of "Family" with a special Mass of thanks to God for the blessings of our families. Following the Mass the families enjoyed refreshments together in the Church Hall.

Co-op Meeting Scheduled on Hill

The Consumer Co-operative Markets have established a center in San Francisco, in the Northpoint shopping center, 350 Bay Street. The Co-op is attempting to serve all of San Francisco and is going to hold a meeting at the Potrero Hill Neighborhood House on Tuesday, February 17, 1976, at 8:00 p.m.

Co-op is wholly owned by its members, although anyone can shop there. Instead of profits being distributed to absentee shareholders, the Co-op distributes its excess income over expenses to members, based in part on the amount of purchases they make; and in part on the amount of the members' investment.

Co-op provides a home economist to assist shoppers in purchasing foods of high nutritional value and low cost. Co-op has an education assistant to help spread consumer oriented information to shoppers and the public.
